

Mather to head golden anniversary

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

Wiley Mather starts these winter mornings with a small concession to his years.

The long-time Upland resident tempers the cold blast of his daily showers by nudging on the hot water facet. He's been doing this for four years, beginning about the time he turned 90.

A bit warmer water in the shower seems to be one of Mather's few concessions to age.

Mather was recently named general chairman for the Madonna of the Trail golden anniversary celebration, which starts Saturday.

The honorary position is appropriate, because not only did Mather witness the statue's dedication in 1929, but his roots run deep in the West End.

Mather was born in 1884 in Pomona, when, he noted, the population of the city was less than 1,000. After some moving around — his father, Franklin, was a Methodist minister with frequent new assignments — returned to the area in 1901.

He came back in time to be one of three students to graduate from Ontario High School, located at the current site of Chaffey High School, in 1903, the school's second graduating class.

Mather recalled there would have been six students in that graduating class, but one boy flunked out, another was caught gambling by his father and a girl missed graduation due to illness.

He went on to receive his bachelor's degree from Pomona College in 1907 and seemed destined for a legal career after he passed the state bar examination in 1909.

Mather did eventually practice law — after a detour into the teaching profession that spanned 40 years.

He studied law at USC and apprenticed for 17 months in an attorney's office, serving papers and researching cases. Mather said the attorney requested he do trial work, something he did not want to do.

He also recalled that some of his legal professors had "no idea how to run a class." So, Mather completed a year of graduate study at the University of California, Berkeley, and became a teacher.

After teaching at two other high schools, he came to Chaffey High in 1913. He stayed on the campus until 1950, with most of his classes after 1923 at Chaffey College, then at the Ontario site.

Mather taught philosophy, sociology and economics as well, but his main interest was always in political science and government history.

He estimated some 9,000 students passed through his classroom over the years, and noted he keeps in touch with some of his former students who are still local residents.

A southern wall of his Laurel Avenue home is lined with from floor to ceiling with books, seemingly evenly divided between his two favorite subjects: constitutional law and the Bible.

In addition to other journals, Mather has subscribed to reports of U.S. Supreme Court decisions since 1920.

He remains an avid reader and student of the Bible, showing a visitor several translations where he has marked important passages in the Greek text.

Mather taught his last college course in government at Pomona College in 1973-74, but he still speaks to local groups and church gatherings on local history, government and aspects of the Bible.

Forced to retire from full-time teaching at Chaffey upon reaching 65, Mather taught half-time in 1949-50 and then returned to the legal career he left 40 years earlier.

"I studied to beat the band, because I hadn't done any formal, systematic study for 40 years," he said, adding, "A lot of water had flowed under the judicial bridge."

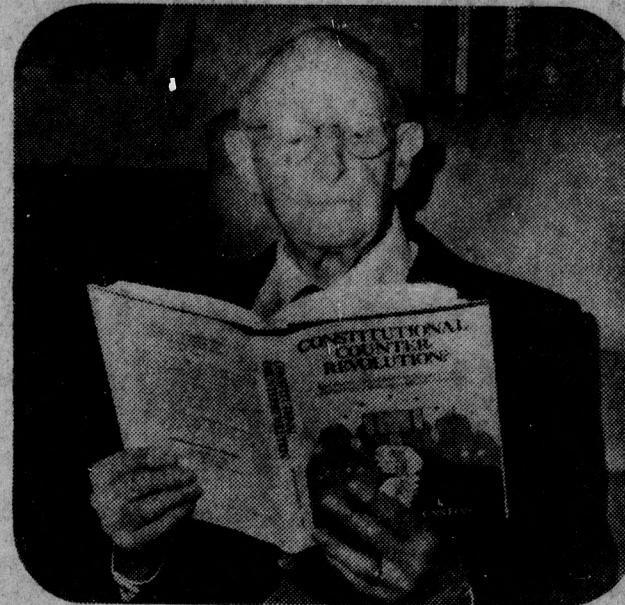

He practiced law, specializing mainly in probate, from 1950 to December 1971, retiring shortly before turning 88.

"I wanted some income. The salaries were very low" for teachers in his day, Mather noted.

He and his wife, Glenn, celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary last year, and the couple has lived practically all of those years in three homes on Laurel Avenue, the last since 1931.

Mather recalled the citrus groves, a bike path on Euclid Avenue, his summer work at the Hotpoint iron plant shortly after it opened in 1904 and many prominent local leaders he has known over the years. Some were his students.

He also remembered the Madonna program of 1929.

Parade will highlight Madonna celebration

Some 30,000 spectators are anticipated Saturday morning when the "Pioneer Pilgrimage Parade" helps kick off a two-day celebration of the Madonna of the Trail's golden anniversary in Upland.

Ceremonies begin 9 a.m. Saturday with the removal of the time capsule sealed at the base of the memorial statue to pioneer mothers on the median of Euclid Avenue just north of Foothill Boulevard.

The parade, highlight of the celebration, is scheduled to run from 10 a.m. to noon.

Ron Marshall, chairman of the Madonna parade committee, said earlier this week 124 entries had been confirmed so far.

Actor Alan Hale Jr. — best known as the skipper from the "Gilligan's Island" television series — will serve as the grand marshal.

Other celebrities include actor Iron Eyes Cody, broadcaster George Putman, Steve Kanaly of the television series "Dallas" and actress Nedra Volz of Upland — who has appeared in many television shows and commercials.

The parade will also mark one of the first official duties for Linda Marie Fogarty, 18, of Fullerton. Miss Fogarty was crowned Miss California-Universe on Monday night.

Wiley Mather, 94, of Upland — a long-time instructor at Chaffey College and local attorney — has the honorary position of general chairman for the celebration.

The parade will feature equestrian units, horse-drawn vehicles, antique cars and trucks, decorated cars, drill teams and bands.

Marshall noted Air Force and Navy bands will perform in the parade.

The parade's theme is "Golden Trails 1929-1979."

From 15th Street, the two-mile parade route travels south on the Euclid Avenue to C Street, where the parade participants will turn east into the downtown area before ending their march.

Euclid Avenue between Eighth and 16th streets will be closed to northbound traffic 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday. The parade's avenue will also be closed during that time to east-west cross traffic on streets south of 16th and north of Eighth.

Parking will be available on these side streets and at shopping centers along Foothill Boulevard. Foothill will be closed at San Antonio Avenue to eastbound traffic and at Campus Avenue to westbound traffic.

At 1 p.m., the contents of the copper "memory box" placed in the base of the Madonna in 1929 will be displayed in a ceremony at the civic center mall south of city hall, 460 N. Euclid Ave.

Residents present for the original dedication of the statue 50 years ago will be recognized as well. Birthday cake, punch and coffee will be served.

Second Avenue between C and A streets and Ninth Street between First and Third avenues will be closed to traffic from noon Saturday to 6 p.m. Sunday for activities centering around the kiosk in the Upland Town Center.

From 1 to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, games and display booths, food, free lemonade, art exhibits and antique cars used in the parade will fill the downtown streets.

The kiosk at Second Avenue and Ninth Street will be the entertainment center for the two days.

Country Bumpkins, a country-western band, will perform 2 p.m. Saturday. At 3 p.m., the Pomona Valley Chapter of the Sweet Adelines will sing, and from 4 to 6 p.m., there will be a square-dancing demonstration.

Del Morgan will be the caller and the Track II dance group will provide the demonstration. Residents will be encouraged to join in.

A country rock group, "Good Times," will perform 1 p.m. Sunday, followed by disco dancing featuring instructors and disc jockeys from The Odyssey in Pomona.

The chief fund-raising activity for the celebration is a pancake breakfast that will be held 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday in the parking lot of Crocker National Bank, 195 N. Second Avenue.

Country Bumpkins will provide the entertainment at the breakfast. Tickets from the breakfast will be good for the raffle of a moped at 4 p.m. at the kiosk.

The Madonna of the Trail statue will be re-dedicated 1 p.m. Sunday in a ceremony at civic center mall. Items for the new time capsule will be reviewed as well.

The San Antonio Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR), the Upland Chamber of Commerce and the city of Upland are sponsoring the anniversary celebration.

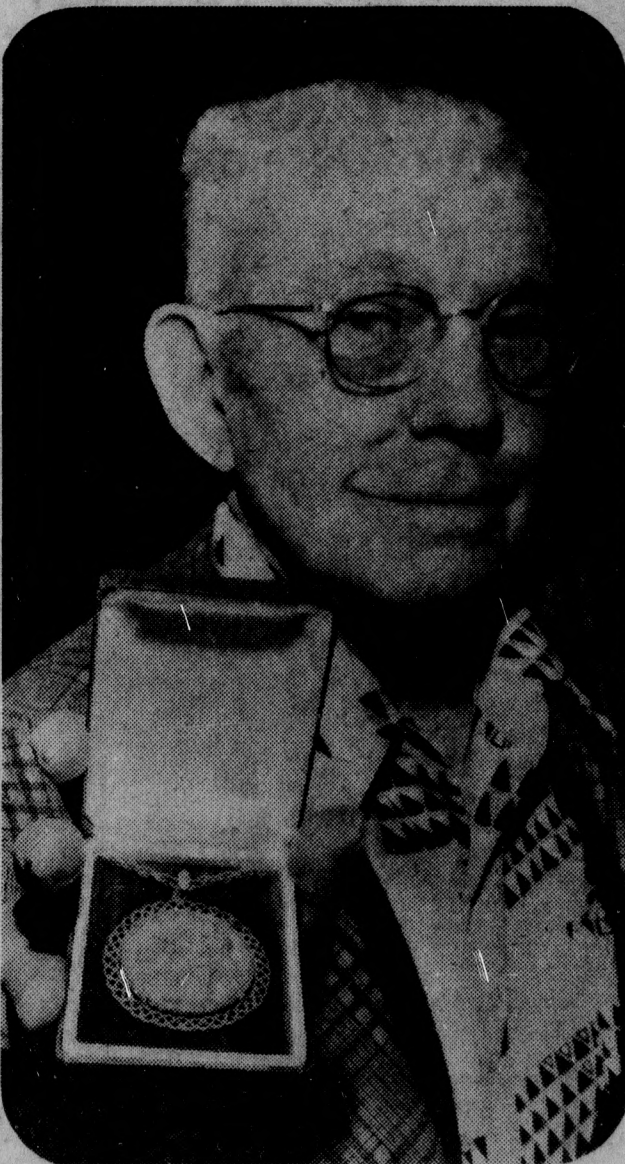

He was there

Uplander recalls 1929 dedication of Madonna statue

"Sure I remember when Upland dedicated the Madonna of the Trail statue on Feb. 1, 1929," said 76-year-old Gilbert Cline, a lifetime Upland resident.

"I was one of the 'phony' soldiers in the parade and had to ride a horse. That was the last time I rode one, too," he said. "I also remember I grew a moustache for the beard contest and my lip got sore because I kept licking it. That was the last time I ever grew a moustache or beard."

But besides those memories, Cline has an even better reason for vividly recalling the ceremony dedicating the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) donated Madonna statue, one of 12 marking the Santa Fe Trail from California to Maryland.

GILBERT CLINE
...Remembers Madonna dedication

He was "semi-responsible" for installing the statue at the corner of Euclid Avenue and Foothill Boulevard.

"My father was the contractor assigned to the job and he had me go into Los Angeles to get a crane big enough to lift the statue. The Madonna was in one piece and the base in four which we placed together in the concrete footing," he remembers.

"I remember driving my old truck into Los Angeles at ten miles an hour and getting this big phone pole-like crane to haul back to Upland. It didn't take too long to mount the statue once we had the equipment."

"We just put a half-inch hemp rope sling around her and pulled her up. I can also remember taking a pink marble piece into Pomona and having it engraved for the base where we were placing the time capsule."

Cline, who retired in 1969 after over 20 years as sole owner of the contracting firm of W. C. Cline Company, doesn't remember exactly what was placed into the original capsule.

"I imagine a lot of questions will be answered when they remove it to make room for the new one," he said. "I know there were organization lists and a copy of the newspaper."

The contents of the original capsule will be removed at 9 a.m., Sat., Feb. 10, when the city of Upland, the Upland Chamber of Commerce and the DAR formally rededicate the Madonna statue.

Those contents will be displayed at the Upland Civic Center Mall for the weekend of Feb. 10-11 during the citywide celebration of the Madonna's 50th birthday.

Mementoes of 1979 including coins, a special Madonna medallion provided by the DAR, organization lists and other items will be inserted in the capsule to be opened 50 years from now. The 1979 items are currently on display in a glass case at the Upland Library.

Cline, a widower who lives in an Upland apartment where he cooks all his own meals ("I like fresh vegetables and fish. I can't stand those TV dinners — they're too full of gravy") has watched the city and area grow during his lifetime.

A 1922 Chaffey High graduate, he recalls that in 1929 when the Madonna was originally dedicated Euclid Avenue was filled with citrus groves and homes for wintering Easterners.

"But things can't stand still," he muses. "You can't fight change. If you don't move ahead, things go to seed. One generation builds and the next tears down. You have to accept growth and go along with it."

The father of two, grandfather of one and great-grandfather of one will be among those honored at the Feb. 10 dedication as an Uplander who played a vital part in the original Madonna ceremony.

Mountain Avenue building stoppage in Upland rejected

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

After hearing developers pledge cooperation on other ways to reduce traffic congestion, the Upland City Council rejected a proposed 120-day moratorium on most building along a corridor of Mountain Avenue.

All five council members agreed in denying the staff-recommended moratorium that would have run concurrent with a review by the state Transportation Commission on whether to abandon the Foothill Freeway route extension.

However, the council called for a harder look at new projects generating more traffic along already-congested Mountain Avenue.

City staff was directed by the council to come up with guidelines for measures to ease the impact of further traffic from new proposals.

City Engineer Fred Blanchard noted the commission's decision Jan. 26 to launch its own study of 28.3-mile freeway extension is formally the start of a process that could lead to rescinding the route from state highway plans.

"There is a very real threat to the potential future of the planned freeway, which is a part of our circulation element of the general plan," he commented.

Blanchard called the effect of eliminating or substantially modifying plans for the freeway extension "quite significant" for Upland's traffic.

"And the street that probably would receive one of the greatest, if not the greatest impacts, would be Mountain Avenue, because it is one of two major north-south arteries," he said.

Blanchard noted the other major north-south street, Euclid Avenue, has a 200-foot right-of-way and less commercial and industrial development.

He said the Mountain Avenue corridor proposed in the moratorium covered roughly 2,000 acres, or just under one-fourth the area of the city.

A major focus of the moratorium proposal was some 480 acres in the corridor that Blanchard pointed out have not received proposals yet for development. Eventual building on that property, along with projects already under way, will add 25 percent or more traffic onto Mountain, he said.

Some 35,000 vehicles currently use Mountain daily at the San Bernardino Freeway and traffic volume reaches 30,000 at its intersection with Foothill Boulevard, he added.

Blanchard called for the moratorium so that the city might plan adjustments for Mountain Avenue, depending on what the transportation commission recommends.

Several developers and others at the meeting objected to moratorium proposal.

Hal Bailin — former Upland councilman and an attorney who represents a property owner in the northwest part of the city — said, "I think it's pretty obvious that there's not going to be any answers — any concrete answers — at the end of 120 days."

"The point is you stop nothing by stopping now," he said. The proposal was "unfair to the development of the city" and would create a "lot of hardship for a lot of people."

Blanchard conceded the commission's study might take closer to six months than the four set for review.

Richard Scott — president of Vanguard Builders — told the council, "As weighted against a moratorium, I think the preference of a builder would be the furnishing of more detailed information."

Scott — also president of the Baldy View Chapter of the Building Industry Association — noted other cities in Southern California actively seek and provide incentives for new commercial and industrial development.

To help clean up dirty air

Auto inspection stations will play important role

By PETER WONG
Staff Writer

From the outside, the building looks like a car wash — and in one sense, what happens inside will help clean up a car.

For the building in San Bernardino and others like it are expected to play an important part in cleaning up Southern California's dirty air over the next nine years.

The building is one of 17 state-supervised inspection stations in Southern California for testing whether air pollution control systems of cars and other vehicles are working properly.

On March 1, the inspections will be required of all cars bought and sold in six Southern California counties, including San Bernardino County. Only then will the state Department of Motor Vehicles register the cars to complete changes in ownership.

That requirement will affect an estimated 1,250,000 car owners in Southern California in the program's first year. Inspections will also be required of out-of-state cars brought into California.

The seller has the legal responsibility for the inspection.

The program is expected to have its widest impact by 1982, when owners of 10 million cars in Southern California must obtain inspections before the Department of Motor Vehicles will renew their registrations.

A single inspection will cost $11. If a car fails the pollution control tests, it must undergo repairs at the owner's expense to a maximum of $50. If the car fails the second (free) inspection, a waiver may be granted.

The cost limit does not apply if a pollution control device must be replaced because it was illegally removed or tampered with.

The full-scale inspection program was termed "inevitable" by Jim Boyd, deputy executive officer of the California Air Resources Board. He described it as "a significant step in our continuing battle against smog."

The inspection station in San Bernardino was unveiled this week at a demonstration arranged for officials and reporters (It is at 222 E. Valley St., near Waterman Avenue.)

The nearest inspection stations to the West End are in San Bernardino, Riverside and Azusa. Up to 60 inspection stations will be built if the program is extended to all car owners in Southern California.

The station sites were selected after a study of the areas with the most frequent changes in car ownership, Boyd said. The selections were not based on geography.

The goal of the program is to reduce hydrocarbons, oxides of nitrogen and carbon monoxide. The first two pollutants react chemically in sunshine to form the photochemical smog common in Southern California, which has the nation's dirtiest air.

If the South Coast air basin is to comply with federal clean air standards by 1987, the inspection program will be necessary by 1982 to demonstrate progress toward the standards.

"Any car in reasonable condition should pass the test," said Jack Dolan, assistant chief of the state Bureau of Automotive Repair. "We're really trying to catch the cars with the biggest pollution problems."

Six minutes Pollution control tests fast

It takes only six minutes or so for cars and other vehicles to undergo pollution control testing at new state-supervised inspection stations.

The 17 stations in Southern California — including those in San Bernardino, Riverside and Azusa — will open about March 1 of this year.

Each station resembles a car wash. Each car passes through three stages:

— First, information about the car, including its make and model year, is recorded in a computer. The computer will determine automatically what pollution control standards apply to that car.

An attendant will check the pollution control devices visually before the car is tested.

— Second, an electronic probe is inserted into the car's tailpipe to measure and record its emissions of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide, two pollutants.

Pollution control devices under the car's hood are also checked.

— Third, the results of the testing are printed by the computer.

If the car passed, the owner is given a certificate of compliance he must show to the Department of Motor Vehicles before registering the car.

If the car failed, the owner is given a report which tells which pollution control devices did not work and why. The printout tells the owner and mechanic what repairs need to be done.

Cases involving felonies judged

Numerous cases involving felony charges were judged recently in West Valley Superior Court. Names, addresses, charges and dispositions are as reported by the district attorney's office.

Conviction charges may in some instances be affected by terms of a plea agreement between defendant and prosecutor. In cases where the sentence prescribed is a term in the county jail, the original felony charge reverts to a misdemeanor.

The cases and dispositions include:

— Stephen John Maeder, 26, city of residence and address unknown. Charged with burglary, forgery and receiving or concealing goods obtained through theft or extortion. The defendant pleaded guilty to forgery. He was found to be a narcotics addict and was committed to the California Rehabilitation Center by Judge Richard Garner.

Pronouncement of judgment withheld with the defendant placed on five years probation by Judge Kenneth Ziebarth.

— Ralph Hernandez Aguilar, age unknown and in custody at the time of the offense. Charged with possession of a weapon while in state prison. The defendant pleaded guilty to possession of a weapon while in state prison. He was sentenced to 16 months in state prison to be served consecutively with his present term by Judge Ziebarth.

— Anthony Cortez, 19, city of residence and address unknown. Charged with murder, robbery and assault with a deadly weapon. The defendant pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter and was found guilty by a jury of robbery and assault with a deadly weapon. On the voluntary manslaughter charge, the defendant was sentenced to three years in state prison with 91 days credit for time served to be served concurrent with a sentence of seven years in state prison with 36 days credit for time served on the robbery and assault with a deadly weapon charges by Judge Garner.

— Michael Anthony Kepich, 37, city of residence unknown. Charged with fraudulent removal of leased property and embezzlement. The defendant pleaded guilty to fraudulent removal of leased property and embezzlement. He was sentenced to three years in state prison with 43 days credit for time served by Judge Allen.

— Orlene Jessie Mortale, 39, 5199 Revere St., Chino. Charged with assault with a deadly weapon and mayhem. The defendant pleaded guilty to assault with a deadly weapon. She received a suspended sentence of two years in state prison and was placed on three years probation by Judge Ziebarth.

— Ruben Leon Espinoza, 21, 5184 Bandera St., Montclair. Charged with felony hit and run causing injuries and misdemeanor hit and run causing property damage. The defendant pleaded no contest to felony hit and run causing injury. Pronouncement of judgment was withheld with the defendant placed on two years probation with terms and conditions to serve five weekends in county jail by Judge Garner.

Special meeting

A special meeting of the Chino Unified School District's Citizens' Advisory Council is being held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the District's Board Room at 5130 Riverside Drive, Chino.

The objective of the meeting will be to establish subcommittees for the purpose of developing guidelines for the future prevention of racial/ethnic imbalance within the school district's attendance boundaries.

Although the required balances have been established at the individual school level, the State has required the submission of a plan by the school district for the prevention of segregated schools. This report must be in to the state by July 1, 1979.

To accomplish the development of this State-mandated plan, the Chino Unified School District, working in conjunction with the Citizens' Advisory Council, is asking for input by the community.

The program will be held at the Upland Library on Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., and Saturdays from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., beginning Feb. 14. Persons who wish to have assistance in completing their returns are asked to call the Upland Recreation Department at 985-0994 for an appointment.

CHP says take it easy driving during winter

Rapidly changing weather conditions this winter have made road travel increasingly dangerous, according to Capt. Jim Perkins, commander of the California Highway Patrol's Ontario area. He issued some safety reminders concerning winter driving.

Tire hydroplaning is a relatively little known wet weather phenomenon which has caused many drivers to become involved in accidents, Perkins said.

"At speeds above 30 mph traction begins to decrease and tires will start to ride on a thin film of water just like a set of water skis. Because the tires don't touch the road surface, there is little friction to brake, accelerate or corner. Slow and easy is the key to overcoming the hazard of hydroplaning," the CHP commander said.

All drivers planning for an outing in the mountains this winter should carry tire chains and be prepared to use them whenever signs indicate they are required, Perkins pointed out.

Snow tires may be used in place of chains in many circumstances, however chains should be used on icy roads.

Art of mime:

Movement the key to communicating an idea without use of words

By KEN SWART
Staff Writer

"Now I want all of you to be happy. Let your face show it... your hands... your feet. Be like a child, without a care in the world."

"Look to the ground. What is that? A bug! Be surprised! Pick it up... look at it... play with it. Now... quick! Put it in your mouth!"

"What does it taste like? Let your face show distaste. No. Worse than that. Disgust. Very good!"

Bette Raya, a 22-year-old accomplished professional actress, led her first adult students through a wonderland of make-believe images during the opening session of her new Wednesday evening mime class at Chaffey College.

"This is the basis for coming across with a nice illusion—learning how your body can move for you and learning how to control the movements."

The control—even exaggeration—of body movement is important because "normal movements by themselves are hardly perceptible from the audience's point of view."

Miss Raya also explained that when the body moves the face becomes much more expressive. Gesturing while talking is a simple demonstration of this, she said.

The exaggeration of body movement is simply a means to an end, however. "Mime is communicating an idea without words. A simple feeling has to come from every part of the body simultaneously if the emotions are to be readable."

"For instance," she said, twisting her face to illustrate, "snobbery is the longest distance between your nose and your upper lip."

Despite the lessons she presented during class, "You are the ones who have to come up with the ideas," she told her students. "I can only show you the techniques."

She suggested, however, "Don't bother looking at other people to compare. Keep your actions to yourself and see how you yourself progress."

For the first lesson Miss Raya asked her students to bend their legs into a sitting position, hold their feet firmly to the floor and their hands in the air in front of them, and then isolate their hands as their bodies moved around them.

The result is the image of hands pressing against a wall while the rest of the body turns independently, almost mechanically.

"That's your first illusion, everybody!" she called out to her students, praising them. "And you thought this was going to be so hard!"

"Now I want that illusion filed away in your mental mime box, along with all the things that happen to you during the week that surprise you or don't make any sense," so ideas will be reachable during class time.

The reason for that is "a lot of mime is simply observation—reflecting what is going on around you through movement. What I want you to start doing is paying attention to people."

She reminded, too, "there's no wrong way to do this, class—and you'll all be geniuses in 10 weeks."

After class, Miss Raya, a Rancho Cucamonga resident, expressed concern that her first adult class won't last, not because of the lack of talent, but because of the lack of students.

Information about the 7 to 9 p.m. class, held in the dance room on the second floor of the gym, may be obtained by calling Chaffey College at 987-1737, or Miss Raya at 987-2904.

She said she first became interested in mime when she was in high school, "where it developed from a need to be able to touch people and reach them in a different way."

She has since received an A.A. in theater arts from Chaffey College, and insturction from Richmond Shepherd.

Although she has had a variety of acting experiences, she said she enjoys mime most of all.

In performances, "I like to give an audience an open book—something they can hold onto but fill in any way they want."

Guest speaker will be Sandy Vance, former pitcher for the Los Angeles Dodgers, and now an environmental land developer. Vance received his master's degree in landscape architecture from Cal Poly Pomona in 1977.

He was signed with the Dodgers in 1968 and in 1970 was called up from Spokane. He pitched a 7-7 record and was voted "Rookie of the Year" by the Dodgers. A sore arm forced him out of baseball in 1973. Along with his work, he belongs to the Dodgers Speakers' Bureau and speaks before groups ranging from Little League to adult social functions.

Vance and his wife, Dee, and sons Ryan and Erik live in Tustin.

Superior Court Judge Henry Busch, council advancement chairman of the Mt. Baldy Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be master of ceremonies. Council president Gerry Gonce will give the welcoming address.

Volunteers to help seniors file tax forms

Assistance in filing federal and state income tax returns will be offered at the Ontario City Library on Saturdays through April 14.

This free service is provided by volunteers trained by the International Revenue Service and the California Franchise Tax Board, under the sponsorship of the American Association of Retired Persons for the benefit of fixed -income retirees and low-income taxpayers who need help in completing their 1978 income tax forms.

Taxpayers who qualify for this service should call 984-2758, extension 30, for an appointment. Tax interviews will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturdays. Individuals scheduled for interviews should bring their 1978 Federal and State tax forms, their W-2 Forms, any other records of income, and their own copies of their 1977 tax forms — if filed last year. Those who do not speak English are advised to bring along an adult friend or relative who can interpret for them during the tax service interview.

Individuals seeking only the answers to questions about tax law or regulations, rather than needing direct assistance in filling out the 540 or 1040 tax forms, may want to use the tax information telephone numbers: 623-2645 for IRS, and toll-free (800) 852-5711 for California income tax.

$95 million tabbed

for water research

The U.S. Geological Survey has been appropriated $95,990,000 for water resources investigations in the 1979 fiscal year.

The result is a $14.8 million increase over fiscal year 1978 and represents approximately 15 percent of the total Geological Survey budget for earth science and resource investigation in 1979.

Mentally retarded invited

The crowning of the boy and girl "St. Valentine Heart-Throb" will highlight the St. Valentine's Social for mentally retarded adults Saturday from 7 to 10 p.m., at Colony Recreation Center, 1240 W. Fourth St., Ontario.

The social, sponsored by Ontario and Upland recreation departments, will include disco dancing, dance games, contests, refreshments and prizes.

There is an admission charge, but no charge for chaperones.

All retarded adults, 18 years and up are invited. Parents and caretakers are requested to call the Ontario Recreation Department Office at 988-1151 to confirm attendance.

A minimum of 50 participants is required for the program to be offered. Deadline for calling is 5 p.m., Thursday.

Talent show planned

The students, teachers and parents of Cucamonga School District will be combining their skills in a talent show to be held at Cucamonga Elementary School in the Cafeteria on Thursday at 7 p.m.

The program is being sponsored by the PTA and coordinated by Miss Josephine Guillen and Mrs. Betty McBroom, teachers at Cucamonga Elementary.

The program will include such things as a "Gong Show," choral reading, music by students, twirling, record pantomime and tumbling.

Refreshments can be purchased at the bake sale.

$170 donation

A total of $170 will be donated to the Cystic Fibrosis Center in San Bernardino by Epsilon Beta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi.

The chapter recently presented the beta of welcome to Gloria Minneci, a transferee from Oxnard, who now lives with her husband, Joe, in Alta Loma.

Launches 'Partnership Fund' drive

Pilgrim Place will build new facility

Pilgrim Place, the Christian workers' retirement community in Claremont, has announced the beginning of a "Partnership Fund" to raise at least $600,000 in contributions for its new Health Services Center, according to David E. Martin, president.

The funds will supplement $1.7 million already contributed and other funds being borrowed.

Martin has appointed Albert E. Norton, of Claremont, to be chairman of the new drive. Frederick Sontag, who headed the earlier effort will continue as a counselor. Other members of the Partnership Fund Committee are Howard R. Bowen, Rollo E. Dunham, John W. Flucke, Francis M. Hearst, Velma M. Lerner, Carolyn Lyon, William F. Montgomery, Clifford W. Pettitt, Jean Platt, Charles T. Richardson, Edna May Soper, and Eulalia Williams.

The name "Partnership Fund" was selected to dramatize the fact that the new 49-bed skilled nursing facility will make half of its space available to elderly Pomona Valley patients who are not residents of Pilgrim Place. It will not duplicate what is already offered but provide special ministry to the terminally ill and a wing for the confused.

"This will be a real partnership on the part of Pilgrim Place with the community, and we hope the community will want to share the construction costs through their gifts," said Norton. "Our aim is to provide health service to those who have served, whether residents of Pilgrim Place or not."

Pilgrim Place residents have already pledged $750,000 for this new Center. Their special committee for the campaign led by Clifford W. Pettitt, will seek another $250,000 as a part of the new effort to bring the resident total to $1 million.

"We hope everyone else will recognize what a great sacrifice this is for the residents to make, and will accept the residents' challenge by pledging at least $350,000 to achieve the full goal," Mor Norton said.

A special appeal will be made to Southern California churches. Major support will be sought from churches of the United Church of Christ because the majority of residents come from this denomination. However, Pilgrim Place is ecumenical, and ten other denominations, including United Presbyterian, United Methodist, American Baptist, Episcopal, Disciples, Lutheran, Reformed and Unitarian are represented among its residents.

The 300 residents of Pilgrim Place are professional Christian workers who have served the major portion of their working years as ministers, missionaries, teachers of religion or YMCA or YWCA directors. Their work has been done in nearly every state of the Union and 26 foreign countries.

The new Center is planned to replace the present health facility

Astronaut

Harvey Mudd graduate to fly space shuttles

By RITA BUSBY
Staff Writer

He said he wanted to be a baseball player when he grew up, but found he wasn't good enough—so he became an astronaut.

George A. Nelson, a 1972 Harvey Mudd College graduate who learned to fly an airplane in the skies above Claremont, was one of 35 persons named last week to the new generation of astronauts who will command space shuttles in the 1990s.

The last group of astronauts was named in 1969.

Nelson returned to his alma mater this week to give a technical presentation in physics and a public lecture on the space shuttle. He also visited a Montclair firm which produces parts for the orbiter, a spaceship associated with the shuttle program, a project of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

The shuttle program will mark the beginning of regularly scheduled and routine flights into space.

Nelson also visited with former classmates associated with the Bates Aeronautics Program, an on-campus program which led to his obtaining a pilot's license.

The pilot's license he received during college may have given him the "edge" to being selected as an astronaut from the more than 8,000 persons who initially applied, according to the astronaut.

Nelson, 27, is among the three youngest astronauts named to the program. All 35 persons selected were between the ages of 27 to 39.

Nelson was in Germany concluding work on a thesis when he applied for the position more than a year ago.

He said he saw an announcement that NASA was accepting applications and proceeded to fill out a "typical 30-page government form," he said.

That was followed by filling out security papers, taking a civil service test and undergoing investigations that involved, "almost everyone I knew."

By October, 1977, he was called to Houston, Texas for further interviews, some with psychiatrists, along with 200 other finalists.

Of that group, 35 were selected—15 pilots and 20 mission specialists.

Nelson, as a mission specialist will be part of a four-man crew which staffs the space-shuttle aircrafts.

Nelson won't pilot the craft but as a mission specialist will be in charge of conducting various experiments aboard the orbiter.

Other members of the crew include the commander, pilot and payload specialist.

Nelson received his bachelor's degree in physics from Harvey Mudd and was awarded his doctorate in astronomy last year from the University of Washington.

February 8, 1979

"I really don't think we were selected for our specialties, but for our ability and interest in learning a wide range of space-age technologies," he said.

But Nelson does hope to perform some solar energy experiments connected with astronomy.

The crews of the space shuttle will be called upon to perform a variety of tasks.

He is currently working on the development of a newly-designed space suit to meet the demands and purposes of the space shuttle.

Nelson said such items as space telescopes will be used on shuttles to increase the magnitude of viewing to the point where "we may find out we're all wet about our forecasts now."

GTE employees combine job, entertaining

By MARGE GROSS
Staff Writer

Whoever said, "Work and play don't mix," doesn't know about the General Happening.

The General Happening is a group of five men and five women employed by General Telephone of California (GTE). Each works in various areas and jobs for the company, but they also entertain with songs and dancing before clubs, in schools, for senior citizens and for most organizations which request their appearances.

Perhaps "play" isn't just the word to describe what the General Happening does, because they work hard to do their best with their entertainment to represent their employer.

Joyce Wilson of Rancho Cucamonga and Lynda James of Upland are two of the five young women in the group, they bring their program at least once a week to some club or group between the San Joaquin Valley and the Palm Springs area.

Joyce has been with GTE for 11 years and is a secretary to a department head in the supply and transportation complex, Pomona. Lynda has been employed by GTE for 12 years and is an administrative clerk in the Bonita Avenue offices, Pomona.

Other members of the General Happening and their jobs are: Jose Altonaga, guitar, cable splicer from Camarillo; Jenny Summeret, singer, toll operator from Goleta; LeVerne Holby, singer, customer representative from Marina Del Rey; Karen Matheny, singer, operator from Long Beach; Steve Henry, guitar, cable splicer from Huntington Beach; Randy Yarnell, cable splicer from Santa Barbara; and John Schaffer, guitar, plant installer-maintainer from Santa Fe Springs.

Currently, there is an opening for another man in the group. This vacancy will be filled through auditions.

Joyce Wilson said she tried out five years ago to fill a vacancy, but it was "six months later before I got the job."

"I love it," she said. "It's lots of fun and it's a good buildup to your confidence. You meet lots of people and we have never had any adverse reaction to our group."

Lynda James said friends submitted her name for auditions when a vacancy came up two years ago in May.

"Friends had to push me," she said. "I just didn't think I'd make it." Lynda is married and has a daughter, 7. "My husband doesn't object to the time it takes for rehearsals and shows," she said. "He knows I have to be my own person and he respects that."

Tim Emmons of Flintridge is employed by GTE to direct the General Happening. Rehearsals are held occasionally for a full day in Santa Barbara, but generally the group rehearses before each show.

GTE considers being in the General Happening as part of their jobs and time off during the day is allowed for night shows. If a member is ill or on vacation, there are no substitutes and those remaining put on the show.

"We'll never forget last winter when the floods hit Santa Barbara and we had a show there," Lynda said. "Only Joyce, John and I got through. We put the show on ourselves and had a standing ovation — but we were there for three days because we couldn't get out."

"We finally hired a little plane," Joyce said, "and flew home with Lynda crying all the way because she's afraid to fly."

The General Happening has performed at the MGM Grand Hotel in Reno, Nev., in a banquet room, not one of the showrooms. The largest audience they have had was over 2,000 Beta Sigma Phi members at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles.

"We could do no wrong before that group," Lynda said.

The entertainers also gave their show when Mr. Blackwell, the noted designer, held a charity fashion show at the Bonaventure Hotel, Los Angeles, and one of their most receptive audiences, they agreed, was the Upland Chamber of Commerce, during a dinner meeting at The Arbor Restaurant, Upland.

"Even if one little person is bouncing up and down when we perform, it is neat," Lynda said. "That is as rewarding as a big audience."

On March 10 the General Happening will appear at GOSH Pavilion for a Kiwanis charity show.

Since the group was organized in 1973, their music has kept up with the current trends. Even though they still do the old favorites, the group is into disco. They do comedy routines, tap dancing and a couple of the fellows play banjos.

"We try to do what people want to hear," Joyce said, "and we have something for everyone."

The performances last from a half hour to 40 minutes, because, one of the young women said, "We like to leave them wanting more."

Lynda James and Joyce Wilson admitted they have had desires to go into the entertainment field professionally.

Lynda was in one play at the Gallery Theater, Ontario, several years ago. She'd like to get into television, but realizes, "you can do anything if you want it, but it has to be first and foremost — you must dedicate yourself to a goal." She is working toward an A.A. degree in liberal arts through video cassettes at work.

Joyce had thought about television and modeling, but never tried it. "It's a rough business and I have a good job and security," she said. When she finds time, Joyce likes to sew. She works out at a gym two nights a week.

Both have decided the General Happening is a great experience and personally satisfies their entertainment career desires.

"The company is our biggest supporter," Joyce said, "and they are proud of us."

Blues singer, 84, to perform

A rare appearance by 84-year-old blues singer Elizabeth Cotten and an evening of traditional Russian folk music by The Troika Balalaikas will be featured at The Barn on the University of California, Riverside, campus.

The California-based Troika Balalaikas will perform at 8 and 10:15 p.m. Saturday while Cotten will give two 75-minute shows, at 8 and 10 p.m. Feb. 24. Tickets to all concerts are available at the UCR Commons Desk.

Joyce Wilson of Rancho Cucamonga, seated, and Lynda James of Upland are members of the General Happening, a musical group of five men and five women who are employed by General Telephone of California (GTE). The popular group performs at least once a week before a variety of clubs and organizations. No fee is charged for the group's program of singing and dancing, but bookings have to be made at least a year in advance. Ms. Wilson is a secretary, and Ms. James is an administrative clerk. Both work in Pomona. (Staff photo by Marge Gross)

St. Anthony's Guild sponsors art auction

By ILA WALES
Staff Writer

St. Anthony's Guild of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, 21st Street and San Antonio Avenue, Upland, is sponsoring an art show and art auction at the church hall Friday.

The artworks can be viewed from 7 to 8 p.m., with the auction slated to begin at 8:30 p.m. A donation is asked.

The collection to be offered by the Robert Sills Galleries of 7324 Laurel Canyon Blvd., North Hollywood, will include original lithographs, etchings and graphics signed and numbered by some of the world's most renowned artists. Each piece is framed and ready to hang. A catalog will be available and trained personnel will answer questions.

A collection of original oriental art, including manuscripts, Indian miniature paintings, woodcuts, etchings, lithographs, serigraphs and mezzotints will be exhibited and sold by Marson Ltd. Feb. 19 at the Clark Humanities Museum of Scripps College, Claremont. The exhibit and sale will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The oldest prints in the collection, which date back to the 18th and 19th centuries, include works by Hiroshige, Kuniyoshi and Kunisada. A large group of modern pieces by such contemporaries as Saito, Azuchi, Mori, Katsuda and Maki also will be offered. The prints will be displayed informally in open portfolios.

"Black and White Are Colors: Paintings of the 1950s-1970s" has opened at the Montgomery and Lang Art Galleries of Pomona and Scripps College, Claremont. The exhibition includes 28 paintings by artists working in a variety of modes, including abstract expressionism, hard-edge, pop, photorealism and abstraction.

Artists whose works appear in the exhibit are Martha Alf, Karl Benjamin, Bart Bolin, Ilya Bolotowsky, David Budd, Max Cole, Lorser Feitelson, Joe Goode, Gordon Hart, Al Held, Valerie Jaudon, Ellsworth Kelly, Franz Kline, Alexander Liberman, John McLaughlin, John Miller, Robert Motherwell, Gordon Onslow Ford, Jackson Pollock, Bruce Richards, James Rosenquist, Jean St. Pierre, Ben Schonzeit, Leon Polk Smith, Frank Stella, Jack Tworkov, Andy Warhol and Tom Wesselmann.

The exhibition was organized by gallery director David W. Steadman and David S. Rubin, assistant director. An illustrated catalog features Rubin's essay, "Black and White Painting: An Historical Perspective." Rubin will speak on the subject at a lecture in the Thatcher Music Building at Pomona College 1:30 p.m. Thursday. Admissions to the lecture and the exhibit are free. Gallery hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily and 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesdays. The "Black and White Are Colors" exhibit will be on view until March 7.

Students of Chinese history will be dazzled by "The Five Colors of the Universe: Costumes of the Ch'ing Dynasty," on display through Feb. 15 at Chaffey College. Shareen Lawrence, Pitzer College new resources student, is guest curator for the exhibit, which is free and open to the public.

The Los Angeles Printmaking Society is sponsoring its sixth national exhibition at the Cal Poly Pomona University Union exhibit gallery. The exhibit will end Feb. 16. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 7 to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

An exhibit of Italian printing in the 15th and 16th centuries will be on display at Honnold Library in the Claremont Colleges, Claremont, until mid-February. The exhibit is in the north lobby of the library.

A William Morris exhibit will be shown at Denison Library in the Claremont Colleges, Claremont, through Feb. 25.

Hand woodworking tools of the past century and publications of the National Bureau of Standards will be exhibited at Sprague Library in the Claremont Colleges, Claremont, through May 1.

Congressmobile stops listed

The Congressmobile, Rep. Jim Lloyd's mobile field office, will stop at the following locations in February:

— Claremont: Feb. 8, across from City Hall, 207 Harvard Ave.

— Montclair: Feb. 15, in front of the north entrance to the Montclair Plaza.

— Rancho Cucamonga: Feb. 22, at Perry's Market, 9477 Foothill Blvd.

The mobile field office will be at each location from 10 a.m. to noon only.

The Play's The Thing at UCR

More than 50 years have passed since Monroe Lippman first saw Ferenc Molnar's comedy "The Play's The Thing" and decided he wanted to direct it someday.

He saw the play revived on Broadway in 1948 and again in the early 1950s in the New Orleans Theater of which he was director. But it was not until this year that he finally got the chance to direct it himself.

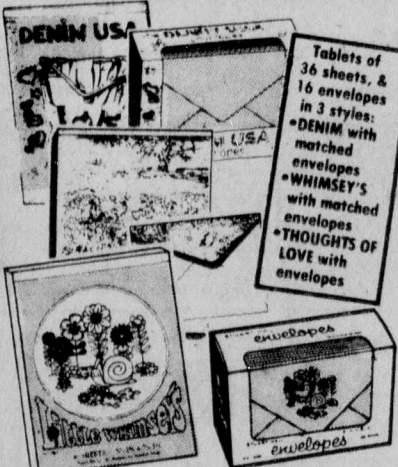

The result will be seen on the stage of Studio Theatre at the University of California, Riverside, at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday and Feb. 14 through 17 and at 2:30 p.m. Saturday. Tickets are on sale at the Fine Arts Ticket Office.

Men in flight

Equal rights momentum adds men to cabin crews

By RITA BUSBY
Staff Writer

"Practically everyone who thinks of a male flight attendant thinks of somebody 'wishy-washy'."

But as more men join the cabin crews of major airlines, public acceptance is erasing the "wishy-washy" image cited by Steve Starmer.

Starmer, 26, is a flight attendant for Air California, with flights out of Ontario International Airport.

Prior to 1975, Air California employed no male flight attendants. Today, following trends taken by most other airlines, 20 of the company's 200 attendants are men.

But Starmer doesn't believe the percentages will ever climb higher.

"Our airline caters mostly to the businessman, and while they gladly accept a male attendant, they still like a pretty stewardess waiting on them," he said.

Starmer, who stands about six-feet tall, said it's been an uphill battle for male attendants to prove themselves as "professionals."

Air California flights are usually staffed by three cabin attendants, often two women and a man.

"But every once in a while, because of scheduling, we get a flight of all male attendants," Starmer said.

And "once in a while on those flights we get a jerk who is unhappy about not having women to ogle," he added.

Steve Starmer

...flight attendant

But he said that for the most part, the passengers are professional people who are courteous to everyone.

Several Air California stewardesses, whose uniforms include cocky tan hats, agreed that a small minority of passengers don't like male flight attendants.

But they consider those types the "fanny-pinching kind," with a television-created image of stewardesses.

"Business women and 'little old ladies' love our male flight attendants," one said.

Plus, the stewardesses added, "We love to have them (male attendants) on board. They're outgoing and love people. We have a lot more fun on flights staffed by them."

Starmer believes, ironically, that the women's liberation movement has had a lot to do with the hiring of male attendants. "It was previously a sort of reverse discrimination," he said.

A California State University, Long Beach, psychology graduate, Starmer averages approximately $1,800 in monthly wages and believes it's a lucrative field. He lives in Laguna Beach.

Starmer has worked for Air California for three years. He received the same training as women attendants.

Although he doesn't plan on a lifetime career as a flight attendant, he expects the training and personal contact will enable him to get a substantial job in the future.

Starmer believes it's interesting to see the change in attitude taking place with the airlines and passengers concerning male flight attendants; like trying to establish a unisex title, such as flight attendant to replace the terms steward and stewardesses.

Starmer likens those titles and accompanying stereotypes to "glorified waiters and waitresses." He described his work as 50 percent routine, such as safety checks and public address announcements, and 50 percent service to passengers.

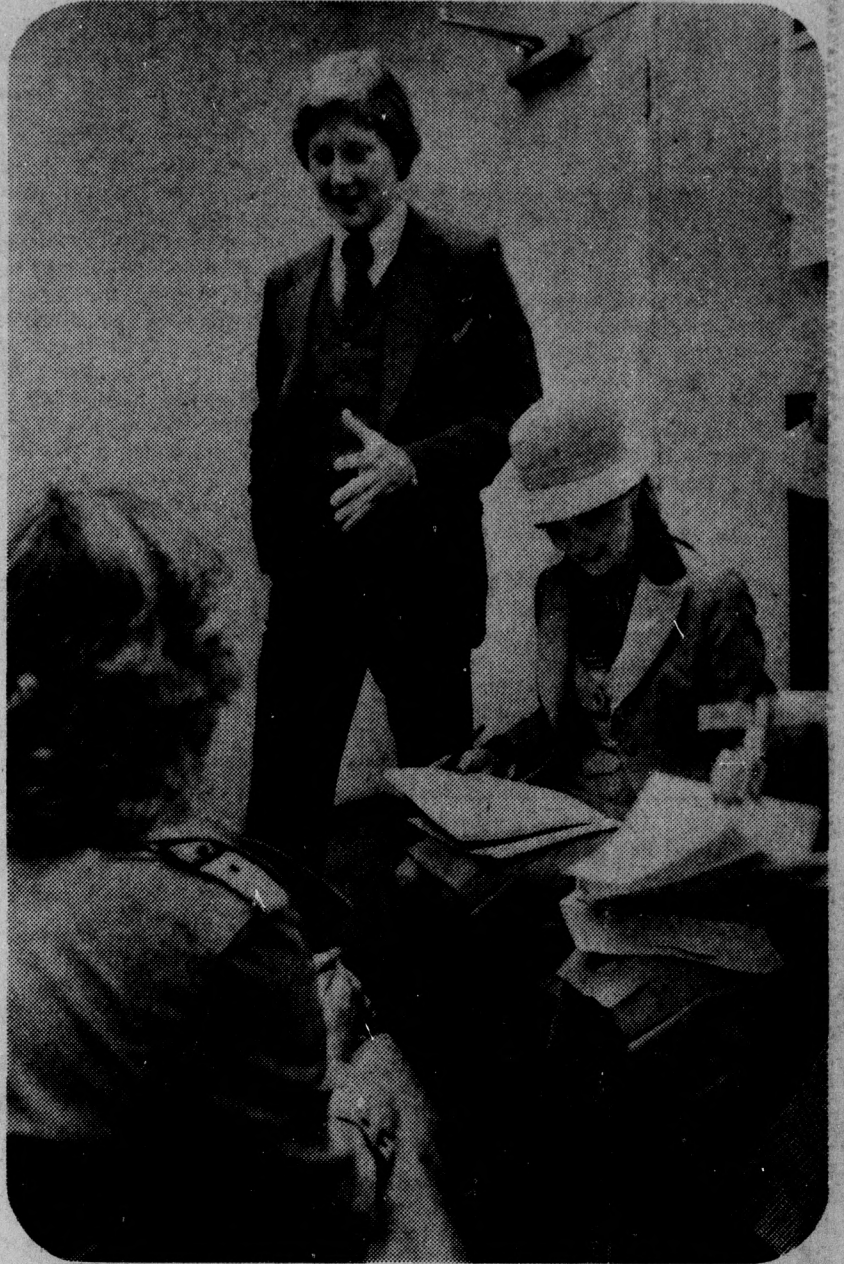

"The passenger contacts are the most fun," Starmer said, adding that one of their most important functions is reassuring the "white knuckle flyer," (novice) who can be anyone from a little old lady to a "cowboy type."

Starmer said male flight attendants will always be in the minority because females are more of an attention-getter.

As an example, he said 600 men applied for an opening last year and only three were hired.

"It's a very competitive field," he said.

"But for those liking public contact, it's a great job," he added.

Steve Starmer, flight attendant, thinks it's great working with stewardesses and foresees the day when a unisex title, such as flight attendant, will apply to what is now generally referred to by passengers as stewardesses and stewards.

Dieters need not forego all rich food

"There's no reason why any dieter should be deprived of foods they like just because of diet restrictions," states Deborah Kidushim, chief dietitian at Queen of Angels Hospital in Los Angeles and noted nutrition expert.

Ms. Kidushim is featured at KABC Talkradio's nutrition counselor in the station's current "Go To Health" campaign and hopes her innovative ideas will better everyone's eating habits.

The two-month "Go To Health" program, which debuted Jan. 1, is an on-air and in-community effort designed as a free, authoritative course in preventive medicine for Southern Californians. Ms. Kidushim's "nutrition tips" public service announcements can be heard on the air throughout the day during the campaign.

Says Ms. Kidushim, "The trick is to learn how to make proper food choices, change old habits and alter recipes so that foods are not only nutritious but also attractive and tasty."

Based on her extensive knowledge and background in the nutrition field, she has co-authored a soon-to-be-published health gourmet cookbook. The book features low sodium, low cholesterol and low calorie recipes that are delicious and healthy.

Her cooking tips include using a variety of herbs to replace salt as a seasoning and using fruit juices and artificial sweeteners in place of sugar to turn out a surprising array of delicious desserts that even a diabetic can enjoy.

"My basic goal is to show healthy eating can be fun. Eat whatever you want, but learn to make good food choices," adds Ms. Kidushim.

In addition to her duties as KABC's nutrition expert, Ms. Kidushim co-hosts an hourly program with KABC personality Elmer Dills on healthful cooking tips and answers questions on nutrition every other Sunday on KABC between 10 and 11 a.m.

She also co-founded a nutrition education program to teach other hospital dietitians how to implement her unique approach to therapeutic diets, conducts individual and group counseling sessions and holds cooking classes to demonstrate this new approach to an alternate system of food preparation. As a guest on numerous radio and television talk shows, Ms. Kidushim has earned the attention of both the media and the public.

Many articles have been written about her food theories, and she has the grateful thanks of scores of diabetic, cardiac and overweight patients who love to eat well. Now they are able to — healthfully.

Ms. Kidushim, a native Californian, is a resident of Beverly Hills.

The following are two of the low sodium, low cholesterol, low calorie recipes developed by Ms. Kidushim and the Queen of

Angels staff:

Chateaubriand With French Provencal Sauce

2 pounds tenderloin (all fat trimmed)
Garlic powder
Lemon juice
Provencal Sauce
Season meat with garlic powder and lemon juice to taste. Broil meat 20 minutes for medium rare, or 10 minutes on each side. Internal temperature of meat should be 125 degrees.

Slice into 3-ounce servings. Top with Provencal Sauce. Makes 8 servings. Three-ounce serving contains: 240 calories, 23 milligrams sodium, 80 milligrams cholesterol, 3 meat exchanges.

Provencal Sauce

8 ounces salt-free beef broth
2 tablespoons sweet basil (leaves)
1 bay leaf
1 tablespoon brown sugar substitute
1 tablespoon finely

chopped shallots
3 garlic cloves, minced
1 tablespoon arrowroot
1/4 cup dry red wine
In a saucepan, combine broth with basil, bay leaf, brown sugar substitute, garlic and shallots. Simmer 45 minutes. Strain broth in fine sieve or cheesecloth until clear and return to saucepan. In a separate bowl, dissolve arrowroot in wine, then stir into broth mixture with wire whip. Simmer sauce slowly, continue stirring until sauce thickens. Makes 1 cup.

America shaping up by exercise

Seven-year-olds and 60-year-olds are running — and finishing — marathons. Running records are set almost weekly, only to be topped the next weekend. Toddlers are deftly skiing the grand slalom and grandparents think nothing of taking off on a ten-mile bike tour.

America's shaping up! When the body shapes up as a result of fitness efforts, it actually goes through a single body phenomenon ... adaptation.

Put most simply, adaptation is the remarkable ability of the body to change, according to what it is asked to do and according to the kinds of raw materials (chiefly from foods) it is given to work with.

For example, when just beginning a jogging program, muscles may ache and shortness of breath is hardly uncommon. But as the physical activity slowly increases, certain improvements are quite noticeable. This is adaptation.

The same thing happens to the body in regards to nutrition. It changes to suit the way one lives and eats.

If not enough iron-rich foods (like enriched breads, cereals and dark green leafy vegetables) are eaten the body adapts.

It struggles to reuse as much of its stored iron as it can.

But it is not completely successful.

Experts agree that poor diet limits the body's potential for activities. Good diet improves its potential.

A good diet for someone on a shape-up program is essentially the same as a good diet for anyone else.

The main idea to remember is to eat a variety of foods to supply the body with energy (calories) protein, fat, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals without taking in more calories than the fitness program expends.

One common misconception concerning foods for athletes is that exercise tends to increase the appetite.

On the contrary, moderate amounts of exercise help to control appetite.

The body has built-in controls which either increase or lessen appetite according to the body's needs.

In practical terms, the inactive person's control system does not work as well as the athlete's.

In one classic study, animals were allowed to eat all they wished.

Those given 40 to 45 minutes of exercise each day consumed less than their inactive cousins.

To learn more about the body's adaptation for change, through exercise and good nutrition, write for a new booklet "Shaping Up for the Long Run" available free from Dept. SU-N, Box 307, Coventry, CT 06238.

And as a healthful addition to any shape-up program here's a suggestion from the corn oil kitchens for a fruit and vegetable salad served with a minted oil dressing.

Runner's Salad Bowl

3 green peppers, cut in 1-inch squares
3 tomatoes, cubed (2 cups)
2 red apples, cored, cubed
½ cup coarsely chopped white onion
1/3 cup corn oil
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 teaspoons dried mint leaves
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon dried minced garlic

¼ teaspoon dried crushed red pepper
2 cups torn lettuce
Lettuce leaves

In large bowl place peppers, tomatoes, apples and onion. In small bowl stir together corn oil, vinegar, mint leaves, salt, garlic and red pepper. Pour over salad; toss. Refrigerate several hours. Just before serving toss with torn lettuce. Turn into lettuce lined bowl. Makes 6 servings.

Fat is aging agent

As people grow older they become more complex. This results from the changes that begin at birth and continue all through a lifetime.

A human being becomes the total of the combination of thousands and thousands of processes. The genetic heritage contributes initially and added to that are the environment, stresses, fatigues, infections, diseases, emotional traumas and nutritional imbalances.

These processes tend to influence each individual in varying degrees and prevent generalizing on people's conditions in particular age groups.

We can say, however, that the condition of the body is directly the result of the nutritional state which reflects the dietary habits of a lifetime.

The stresses that affect an accelerated aging process begin early, and through the years take their toll insidiously, and eventually, disastrously.

The diet shows up as either friend or foe according to the nutritional choices that have been made over a period of years.

A simple but dramatic example of this would be a gain of one pound a year beginning at age 20 with a total gain of 30 pounds by age 50.

Stresses on organs and individual cells may accumulate and cause an impairment in functioning. As little as 10 extra calories per day can make a difference.

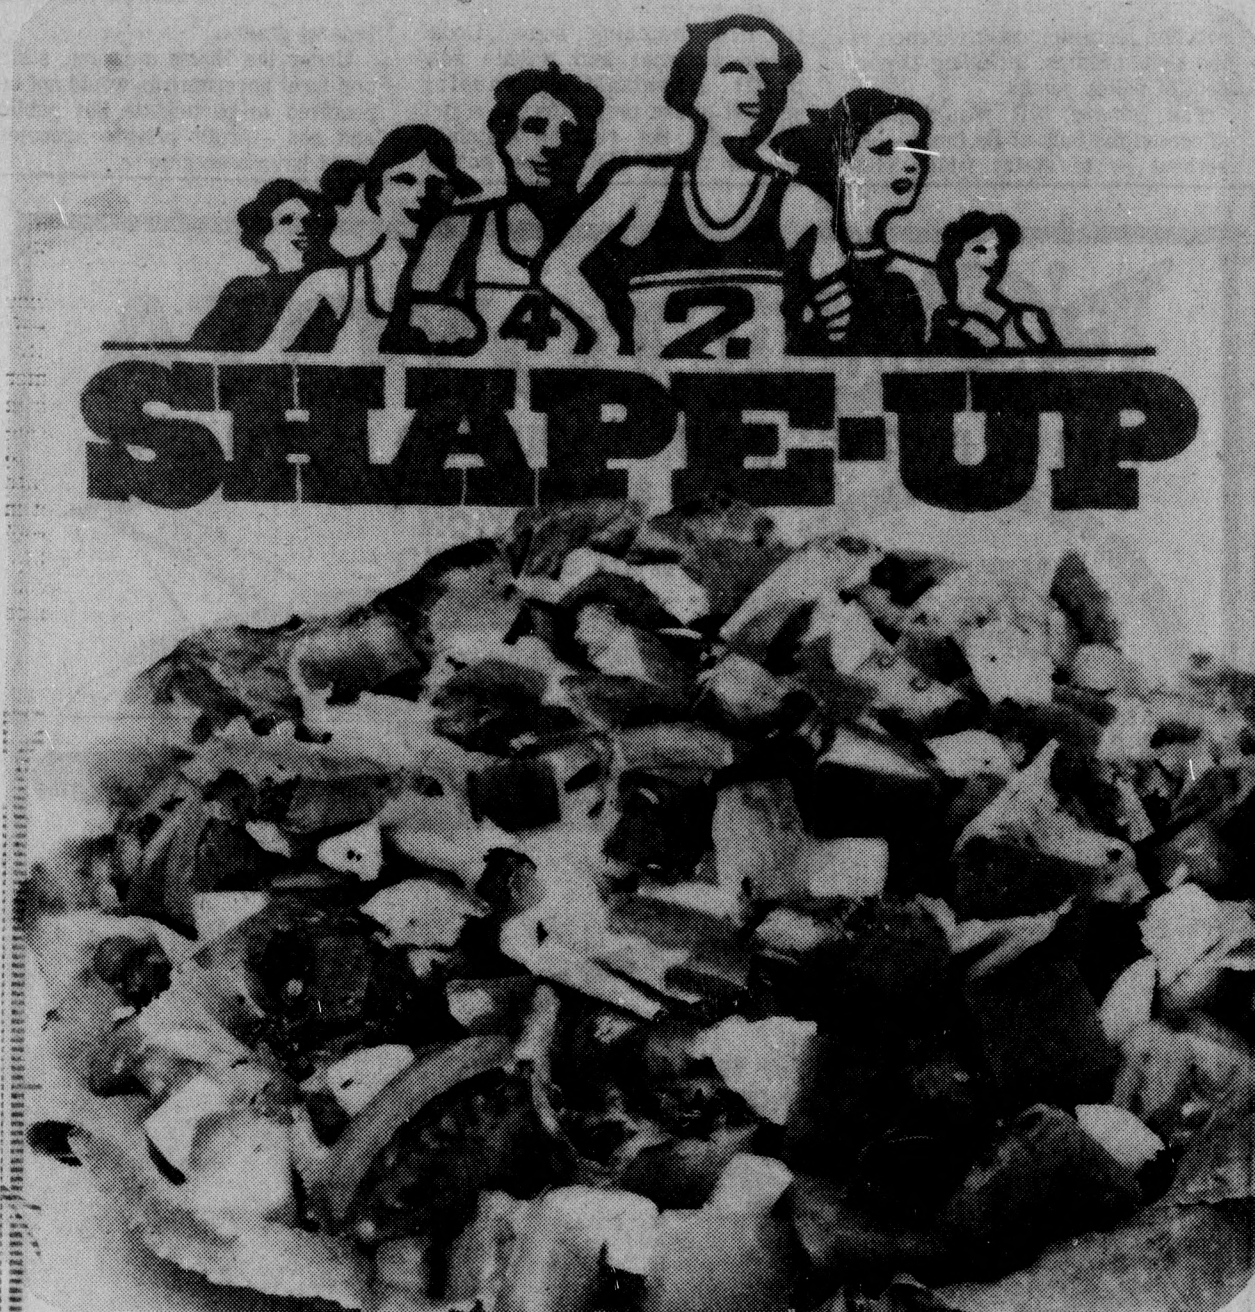

Physiologists have long been interested in the degenerative changes that occur with aging. The current consensus is that a decrease in the functioning of any organ is most likely due to a loss of cells, rather than a functional change in existing cells.

The state of all cells is directly related to the nutritional excellence of each individual cell. This tells us that our general nutritional level has a direct bearing on our aging process.

Overnutrition, or the excessive intake of calories that produces obesity, contributes to aging. Excess fat not only makes you look older and feel older, but actually makes you physiologically older. The additional stresses on all vital organs caused by overweight can add years — fast.

To increase your chances of looking well and feeling well at any age, you must first get rid of any excess fat that has accumulated.

You must increase the nutritional level of your diet while at the same time decreasing the caloric intake.

Runners' Salad, a combination of apples and vegetables with a minted oil dressing, is a nutritious addition to any shape-up program.

Everyone (almost) seems to be running back into condition and good nutrition is as important as the physical side.

Great weekday feast

Economy and convenience are two key words when it comes to food preparation.

Today's living necessitates that time and money be kept at a minimum. This however should not mean skimping on quality.

Meatball Stroganoff is a perfect example, as it fills all of the above requirements yet still remains delicious. Actually it's hamburger dressed up in its Sunday best, then seasoned with stroganoff spices and the mellow brew. The brew combines the flavors and turns the ordinary into the extraordinary.

It's a great "weekday" meal as it's quick and simple. Goes well with a tossed green salad and, of course, glasses of cold beer!

Meatball Stroganoff on Noodles

1½ pounds lean ground beef
1 egg
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons shortening
1 (1½ oz.) envelope beef stroganoff mix
½ cup beer
1 cup (½ pint) dairy sour cream

Combine beef, egg, onion, salt; shape into 1-inch meatballs. Brown meatballs on all sides in hot shortening. Drain off excess fat. Sprinkle stroganoff mix over meatballs; pour on beer. Simmer for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Fold in sour cream. Reheat but do not boil. Serve meatballs over buttered noodles. Serves 6.

A good diet for someone on a shape-up program is essentially the same as a good diet for anyone else.

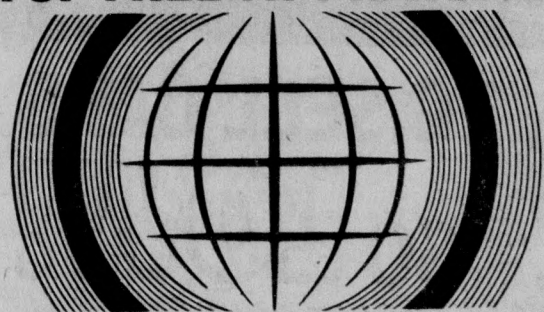

The main idea to remember is to eat a variety of foods to supply the body with energy (calories)

Money cutbacks, opposition

Bill to assist battered wives faces rough going in Congress

By MARGUERITE SULLIVAN
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — A bill to spend federal funds to combat what has been called The National Epidemic of Family Violence will have rough going in the new Congress, even though it almost sailed through the last.

Its problem will come from President Carter's plan to cut back federal spending coupled with strong opposition to the bill by a conservative House member who will become ranking member of the committee which will take up the legislation.

Until last fall, it looked like easy passage for federal funding of social programs which deal with spousal abuse.

In September, by a voice vote the Senate authorized spending up to $30 million annually for five years in grants to states and local agencies for shelters and other community programs.

Much to its supporters' surprise, the measure snagged in the House, even though it had a smaller price tag — $65 million over three years opposed to the Senate's $150 million over five.

No opposition had surfaced in the House subcommittee which considered it. As the aide to one of the bill's co-sponsors said: "We had liberals, we had conservatives, we had everybody on our side."

In the House, the bill was brought up under a "suspension of the rules" which limits debate, stipulates that no amendments be offered, and requires a two-thirds approval for passage.

It failed 205 to 201. "We forgot one of the basic skills of politics. We didn't count (votes)," said Rep. Lindy Boggs, D-La., one of the principal co-sponsors.

Boggs and the other backers of the legislation regrouped and thought they had passage in October almost ensured. The bill was scheduled to be taken up in the last days of Congress, this time in a routine vote. That was, however, until conservative Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, announced he would introduce 38 amendments — "normal grammatical changes," one of the bill's supporters griped.

With major legislation, such as the Energy Bill, still facing it before recess, House leaders didn't want to haggle over a measure which they gave lesser priority. It was never brought to the floor.

The measure will be reintroduced in January, in the Senate by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Cal., and in the House by Boggs, Rep. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., and Rep. George Miller, D-Cal. (Martinez).

This year, however, no one is sanguine about its passage.

The Senate is not expected to take it up until House passage, since the major opposition comes from that body.

In the House, the major snag is Ashbrook.

The conservative Ohioan, who last year was the number two Republican on the House Education and Labor Committee, which will consider the bill, in 1979 will be ranking minority member.

His opposition will carry even more clout, and Ashbrook definitely plans to fight it, an aide said.

To the Ohioan, the legislation is "a candidate for the most unlikely bill of the year to succeed."

Ashbrook argues domestic violence is a problem for local governments and questions the wisdom of establishing a new grant program in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"One more federal program giving HEW that much more authority is not going to answer anybody's problems," Ashbrook says.

With President Carter's pledge to cut back federal spending, being another federal program may well be the bill's biggest hang-up.

Yet, the measure's advocates contend domestic violence is one of the country's major ills.

According to Rep. Miller, spousal abuse occurs in over half of the marriages in the country. Between 1967 and 1973, over 17,000 deaths

Change in temperature affects some MS patients

By LEW SCARR
Copley News Service

Every morning about sunup, a young man, unable to walk because of multiple sclerosis, hauls himself into his wheelchair and glides to the edge of his swimming pool.

Rising unsteadily on his trembling hands he somehow summons enough strength to throw himself into the water. Struggling at first, he manages a crazy, crablike course toward the far end, swimming with more and more power just before he finishes and finally grabs the slippery concrete coping.

Then he climbs out of the pool and walks — walks — back to his wheelchair, pushes it into the house and prepares his breakfast.

About the time he finishes eating, the seemingly miraculous strength with which his swim has washed him fades and he is confined once again to his wheelchair until the next morning when he does it all over again.

This is a classic example of the effect that change in body temperature has on about 20 to 40 percent of those who have multiple sclerosis.

Dr. Charles K. Jablecki, assistant professor in the Department of Neurosciences, University of California at San Diego School of Medicine, said MS symptoms are worsened in some patients when their body core temperature is raised, sometimes even slightly. The symptoms are temporarily diminished when the body temperature is lowered.

If an adequate number of muscle fibers are affected in a concentrated area, he said, there can be a dramatic change in function caused by even a slight change in temperature.

Another example of this phenomenon is exhibited in another MS patient, a student, who is able to force her MS-impaired vision into brief periods of normalcy by chewing an ice cube. Apparently by lowering her temperature even at the local level, she is able to get through a chapter or two in her book before her vision again becomes impaired.

Jablecki said that vision becomes worse, too, with physical exercise for some MS patients. It apparently is correlated to the rise in body temperature that comes with exercise.

One of the few exercises some MS patients can do with sufficient activity to raise their heart rate without also raising their body temperatures is swimming, as long as it is in water cooler than their body temperatures.

Many MS patients, Jablecki said, feel better when they awaken in the morning because their body temperature is lower then, but feel worse as the day wears on, and then feel better at night again when their temperature falls.

A patient who perhaps has had only one mild MS symptom in his or her life can have a severe attack if he or she takes a hot bath. Under these conditions, Jablecki said, muscle weakness may progress to paralysis.

Dr. Marjorie E. Seybold

said that 25 percent of MS patients have vision problems. One of the disorders, optic neuritis, can cause vision loss in a matter of hours, Seybold said.

She advised physicians to listen to patients when they complain of sudden vision loss accompanied by eye pain which is worsened when the eye is moved.

Seybold, who is associate professor of neurosciences at the UCSD School of Medicine, said that spontaneous remission of vision loss occurs in 75 percent of the cases and vision returns to normal.

resulted from domestic violence in the United States, including 22 percent of police deaths.

The Senate bill would have allocated the bulk of its funds — 72 percent — to states which contributed matching sums. Local public agencies and private non-profit organizations, running spousal abuse programs, in states which did not receive matching grants could also have gotten federal grants.

Under the House measure, state and local governments would not be required to participate but public and non-profit private agencies could have been able to.

Should you pay your carrier . . .

or not?

You don't have to. It's purely a matter for you to decide.

This newspaper is what is called in newspaper circles, a controlled circulation newspaper. There are dozens across the country—enough even to have conventions. The purpose of a controlled circulation newspaper is to provide local news, local service and local advertising to an important, independent, interested community.

But where does your carrier come in? He is paid a minimum allowance for delivering your local newspaper. He depends on you, really for his income, because when he collects, most of it is his. Controlled circulation newspapers work like that, on a voluntary pay plan.

We hope you appreciate and enjoy your newspaper enough to voluntarily pay your carrier. He is dependable. He is rendering you a service. He would like to earn the money. Pay him? Think about it.
